Meeting addresses readiness for projected gaming changes

A 7 p.m. town meeting Wednesday at the Hancock County Civic Center will focus on being prepared for projected changes resulting from gambling.

Speaker will be Warren de Brueys, retired executive director of the Metropolitan Crime Commission in New Orleans.

According to the sponsor, the Mississippi Coast Crime Commission, the program is not intended to generate fear of the unknown, but to recognize what some of the problems may be and take steps to minimize trauma through education and prior planning.

Commission Executive Director Jerry Brown said, "It is our intention to convey some of the experiences incurred by other communities who have legalized casino type gambling. The purpose, obviously, is to provide the information in order that the community can prepare itself and avoid some of the trauma others have experienced from negative factors.

"We have no interest in providing a forum for either side of the gambling issue. As far as we are concerned, the electorate has made its decision in that regard. Our effort is intended to be purely instructional and to productively channel the community's concerns into constructive awareness and preparation."

The public is invited.

Supervisors officially oppose gill netting

BY TRACI BONNEY

Now it's official.

The county board of supervisors re-affirmed its opposition to gill netting in parts of the bay Monday by again passing a resolution asking the Bureau of Marine Resources to ban the activity from Bayou Cadet to the Hwy. 90 bridge.

The board had passed the resolution and sent a copy of it to BMR in the spring, but decided to repeat the action at the recommendation of board attorney Gerald Gex.

The state legislature, in its last regular session, passed a bill allowing county supervisors to make suggestions to BMR concerning the regulation of gill and trammel netting. The authority to make suggestions was limited to a 30-day period starting when the bill went into effect on July 1.

The board made its position known to BMR immediately following the passage of the bill, but Gex commented Monday that it would be a good idea for the board to remind BMR of that position, now that the counties can officially submit resolutions.

The board also appointed J.P. Compretta of Bay St. Louis as one of the county's public defenders. Compretta replaces Steve Benvenuti, who resigned from the position effective June 30.

EDA grant funds search for ammo plant tenant

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Congressman Gene Taylor reported efforts to find a tenant for the defunct Mississippi Army Ammunitions Plant at Stennis Space Center will be bolstered by the financial backing of a $37,500 federal grant through the Department of Commerce.

The grant was approved June 26 and will be used to fund ongoing attempts to attract a private industry or business to the ammo plant which was closed last year by the Department of Defense, explained the congressman's office.

At peak production, the plant employed 1,700 residents of Pearl River, Hancock and Harrison counties and St. Tammany parish.

The Economic Development Administration (EDA) of the Department of Commerce awarded the grant to the Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District in Gulfport, which will place the money into the Southern Development Association as needed, under the direction of Bay St. Louis businessman and association president, Carroll Gordon.

Gordon received the $37,500 will support mainly correspondence costs, contract labor for engineering drafts and general expenses, Gordon said, though the grant money will not cover a salary for himself, it will cover

Welman/Marrs/Ethridge dispute goes to court

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

George Welman and Norma Marrs are taking Joe Ethridge to court on July 31 for two counts of simple assault with the intention of "making a point."

"I want Mr. Ethridge to know that that sort of behavior is not acceptable in this community," stated Welman.

Welman, chairman of the Hancock County Tourism and Gaming Association, claimed that during a June 7 Bay St. Louis City Council meeting he was physically lifted and thrown backwards by Ethridge for no known reason while standing at the council chamber doorway.

The city council meeting room was described as packed to a standing room only crowd which overflowed into the reception area of the city hall. Residents had attended the meeting to hear a report by city consultant Jules Lagarde on a planned comprehensive gaming feasibility study.

Welman also said that after Ethridge threw him, he (Ethridge) then grabbed Norma Marrs, a marketing committee member for the Tourism and Gaming Association, by the arm and "shoved her against a window."

Bay favors GRPC shuffle

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Bay St. Louis city council passed a resolution Monday supporting the reorganization of the Gulf Regional Planning Commission.

Mayor Edward Favre recommended the resolution after explaining that GRPC is considering a reorganization to become more responsive to the needs of the three Coastal counties. It was passed 4-0, with council member John Wilkerson absent from the meeting.

In his report, Favre told the council the city has been forced to close the lower part of the Ulman Avenue pier for repairs. He explained that sand erosion has removed support from some of the pilings, and wave action has led to gaps in the pier.

He also asked for and received authorization for the city to participate with the county in a

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

Jesus and capitalism

For years now, U.S. economists have been warning us that Americans are not saving enough. Too small a percentage of our income goes into savings, they say. By contrast, the Japanese save a considerable chunk of what they earn. See what saving has done for them, they tell us.

After pounding us with this warning, the economists then point out that retailers are complaining that sales are slow both in the automotive industry and in stores. Feeling the crunch of the recession, Americans are holding on to their pocketbooks. The remedy, of course, is to spend more.

According to these dueling views of learned economists, Americans are caught between the pincers of not clinging long enough to their money and of not spending it fast enough. It would seem that there is a recession both because Americans did not save and because they are not spending.

There are many jokes about the double speak of politicians, but many economists can go there one better. Bewildering is a very appropriate term for describing the garbled mess which often drops from the mouth of economists who presume to be the money prophets of the world.

Surely, these money prophets belong to a non-profit organization. Almost at the same instant we are told that housing is going to pot, an ensuing report tells us that it is up-trending, only to be down-graded once again within weeks. This dizzy pattern goes on throughout most months of most years.

The same roller coaster is obvious in the strong dollar which is good for us, though bad for foreigners; the weak dollar which is bad for us, but good for other countries.

Yet, the weak dollar helps our sales abroad and thus improves our international trade balance.

High oil prices are terrible for the country, but great for Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and California. Likewise, cheap supermarket prices delight the homemaker but depress the farmers who, of course, want high prices.

Naturally, in the middle of all this rests that tried and true engine which makes all capitalistic endeavor go: the greed incentive. Earn and save in order that you may have, and maybe one day you will decide to spend.

According to Jesus Christ, both stances are defective. Granted that people need to set a little aside for a rainy-day and that they also need to spend a bit now and then, Jesus warns us against any preoccupation with saving/spending.

"Do not store up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moth and decay destroy, and thieves break in and steal. But store up treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor decay destroys, nor thieves break in and steal. For where your treasure is, there also will your heart be" (Mt. 6: 19-21).

Pope John Paul II approached the whole question from a realistic, pragmatic posture: capitalism is here to stay, in that it is ingrained in the democratic system.

In "Centesimus Annus," the pope gave a qualified blessing to capitalism by accepting democracy-as-value, given the inferiority of other forms of government.

Neither Jesus nor the pope meant that we should not get out and work hard for a good living. What both did intend is that we detach ourselves from material things and share them.

Power lost briefly Friday

More than 4,000 local Mississippi Power Co. customers were powerless Friday afternoon for 10 minutes to half an hour, according to company spokesman Buddy Eller.

Around 1 p.m., lightning struck a power substation on Waveland Avenue, leaving about 300 customers without electricity for 30 minutes. Five minutes later, a dead pine tree cut power to almost 3,800 customers for 10 minutes when it fell across a power line near the Bay St. Louis-Waveland city line.

Ray Murphy announces for Hancock Sheriff

Ray Murphy

Former Bay St. Louis Police Chief Ray Murphy, 35, has announced his candidacy in the Hancock County sheriff's race. Murphy will be seeking the Republican nomination in the September 17 primary. Thus far, he is the only candidate seeking that party's nomination for sheriff.

The September nominee will vie with the Democratic nominee in the November general election.

The former police chief, a member of the 20th Special Forces Group (airborne), Second Battalion, was demobilized from active duty during Operation Desert Storm on June 1. Murphy is currently employed by the New Orleans Police Department.

Murphy, a longtime resident of Bay St. Louis, is married to the former Claudia Spotorno of Bay St. Louis. They have four sons: Darrell, a graduate of Bay High School; Benny and Raleigh, students at Bay High; and Daniel, a student at Bay Middle School.

Murphy is a member of the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post No. 139, Bay St. Louis and Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church.

He has a BA degree from the University of Southern Mississippi and operates and manages a family business.

Murphy believes the sheriff's office must work on sound principles.

His training and experience in law enforcement includes: —more than 15 years experience as a professional law enforcement officer;

—4½ years as Bay St. Louis chief of police;

—schooled in federal law enforcement against the exploitation of children;

—schooled in gambling and fraud investigation;

—graduate of Jackson Police Academy;

—graduate of the New Orleans Police Academy;

—member, National Association of Police Chiefs; —member, Mississippi Association of Police Chiefs and National Association for Police Management;

—member of the Narcotics Institute; and —a black belt in Kempo karate, unarmed defense.

Murphy's goals as sheriff include placing competent law enforcement officers in charge of the justice facility; making management accountable with clearly defined procedures and responsibilities; improving physical fitness with mandatory programs for officers;

Increasing protection for the northern part of the county and beginning frequent visits by sheriff keeping criminals in jail by discontinuing unsupervised passes and demanding maximum sentences to help combat drug abuse;

Establishing an evidence control system and instituting an accountable narcotics unit staffed with skilled and experienced officers of high integrity;

Creating a special homicide investigation unit and implementing programs to utilize expertise of gambling specialists.

Vo-Tech Center takes a new name

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

As of Monday, the Pearl River Vocational-Technical Center at Stennis Air Park is to be called the Hancock County Vocational-Technical Center.

Hancock County School Board members voted to approve the official transfer by the state of the junior college facility.

Superintendent Terrell Randolph stated the deed and papers were in the mail and expected "any day."

The school district requested the transfer of the property during a May 6 meeting at which time he explained the takeover would save the district money in the long run. The district reimburses the vo-tech center for each Hancock student who attends a vo-tech class.

Randolph claimed this year the increase per student was such that the cost to the district would have been $30,000 to $40,000 more than if the district had run the school itself.

Randolph said under the management of the district, the state funding per student would be reimbursed at 99 percent, while under the management of the college system, reimbursement averaged 89 percent.

He added the district would also receive general fund mileage from the county, which would help the district support the secondary school programs offered at the center.

The administration of the county center, title to the land and facility, and funds entitled are now property of the Hancock County School District, with the exception of the nursing and business technological programs. These will continue under the control of the Pearl River system, as they are post-secondary school programs.

The school district intend that the secondary school programs at the center be increased to better serve the needs of local students in the coming year.

During Monday's meeting approval was given by the board to employ the Hancock County Vocational-Technical Center personnel.

Randolph said, "These are the same people who were employed by the Pearl River Center."

The board approved that the employees of the Hancock County Vo-Tech Center be paid on the district pay scale, which is expected to produce an increase in salaries from those previously received through the Pearl River system.

The board also approved to employ Alvin Bourgeois as director of the vo-tech center.

Taylor in favor of gambling on U.S. ships in federal waters

BY TRACI BONNEY

Rep. Gene Taylor said recently that he plans to introduce legislation which, if passed, will allow U.S.-flagged vessels to engage in gaming in federal waters.

In a letter dated June 26, Taylor said he plans to introduce legislation this month which will amend the nation's gambling ship act. According to a legal opinion from U.S. Attorney General Dick Thornburg, no ship, whether foreign- or U.S.-flagged, is allowed to operate gambling machines or games in federal waters.

Taylor stated he thinks the legislation he is proposing will give cruise ship owners and operators who choose to re-flag under U.S. registry permanent relief to the situation.

Taylor introduced an amendment to the gambling ship act during the last session of Congress, but the amendment was not accepted.

Other business conducted by the board included: opening bids for asphalt, gravel, grader blades, road signs, tires, county office supplies, voting booths and the Road E paving and repair project at Stennis Air Park; approving railroad, water and sewer system extension bids at Port Bienville Industrial Park for Calgon Carbon Corp.'s new plant;

Hearing reports and comments from county officials, Planning Commission chairman John Scaife, Wastewater District 1 Commissioner Cal Gex, Child Development Center spokesperson Lora Mederos, Clermont Harbor/Lakeshore Fire Protection District chief Pete Lestelle and Springwood Park resident Donna Martin; and approving the June 16-31 payroll, the July claims docket and July 4 as a county holiday.

The board recessed to Tuesday to work on tax equalization.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

I received a letter this week from Uless and Mary Lee Bergeron, who have been serving as missionaries in Quito, Ecuador.

The Hancock County couple is well known by a large number of residents.

They report they have had to return to Lima, Peru, on June 26 as their visas were not extended.

They report that they are enjoying learning the Spanish language, and that it has been a wonderful and exciting experience.

The Bergerons are looking forward to more language study in Peru and making more friends.

I am glad the Bergerons are doing well, and they report receiving several copies of the photos and story we recently published about them in the Echo.

In case you are interested in writing to Uless and Mary, their address is Uless & Mary Lee Bergeron, La Florida 280, Apartado 3177, Lima, Peru.

As this long holiday weekend comes to an end, one must be reminded that summer is fast becoming history for the year 1991.

It seems as if it were just a few days ago that we were welcoming June, and now July is well on the way.

Local students have only five more weeks before the sound of school bells will be ringing.

This will be good news for some parents, but not for many students.

Do not forget the many events which are still underway in the area today:

—The Our Lady of the Gulf Crab Festival in Bay St. Louis.

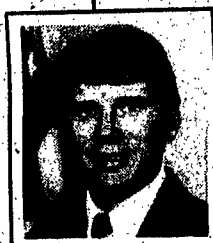

—The St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church Fair, Bay St. Louis.

—The annual Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, Gulfport.

—The annual Boat Parade at Jourdan River Shores this afternoon.

I am hoping everyone will enjoy the rest of this holiday weekend and summer.

Have a safe holiday.

House approves south Mississippi projects

Long Beach homeowners and businesses can expect relief from flooding they have endured for years as a result of Fiscal Year 1992 Agriculture Appropriations approved by the House of Representatives last week.

Construction of the watershed project was not scheduled to begin until 1994, but when I explained to Chairman Whitten the great need for this project, the chairman, his committee and staff members responded. Approval of this funding is the first step in providing relief from frequent property damage and from a problem that has increased with growth in Long Beach and southwest Harrison County.

The residents and public officials of Long Beach and Harrison County deserve praise because they worked very hard on this project. The watershed contains 10,857 acres and consists of two man-made canals. The first canal is at the upper end of Johnson Bayou and the upper canal is at the upper end of Bayou Portage. An environmental impact statement has previously been completed under the authority of the Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act.

If approved by the Senate, 8.3 miles of channel modifications will be constructed. This will include 6.7 miles of channel enlargement and 1.6 miles of selective snagging. The estimated construction cost of the project is $1,533,900.

Also approved last week, was $1 million in funding for the purchase of additional land for the proposed Grand Bay Savanna Wildlife Refuge. Freshwater produced from this area supplies one of the most productive estuaries in the world, which in turn, supports both Mississippi and Alabama's sports fishing and commercial fishing industries.

Approximately 4,311 acres have already been donated to the Fish and Wildlife Service by Columbia Ventures, Inc. and an additional 200 acres have been acquired by The Nature Conservancy. The funds in this House appropriation package will be for the purchase of additional lands.

Grand Bay Savanna is the largest and least disturbed wet savanna in the United States located approximately eight miles east of Pascagoula and 20 miles west of Mobile.

The House appropriations now move to the Senate for approval.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Weidman thanked for safeguarding tax money

To the Editor:

The people of Waveland can be thankful that they have one alderman who has the integrity to try to do what is right rather than what is easy. He is trying to make the system work as it is supposed to and attempting to safeguard the taxpayers' money. It is a shame that he has to fight alone.

Thank you, Stan Weidman.

Girls softball should not be overlooked

Dear Editor,

Unfortunately there are too many people, businesses, groups and officials who do not support the girls' softball program like they should or could.

"At this time, I would like to thank our local Pizza Hut for their support. The manager, Gary Whiten, was generous in helping with a pizza party given for Allstate, the recent winner of the 9-12-year-old girls' league competition.

Their example should encourage others to make a commitment to girls' softball. We are and will continue to be an important part of our community.

Mississippi fights back

For the last several weeks, it has seemed like we have been fighting a circle saw as we have tried to defend Mississippi and Mississippi projects against attack.

Two Mississippi military bases, Mississippi's two NASA installations and the Vicksburg operation of the Army Corps of Engineers have all faced threats.

First, the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission put the Meridian Naval Air Station and the Pascagoula Homeport on a list for reconsideration for closing.

No Mississippi bases had been on the original closure list submitted by the Pentagon. In fact, Mississippi would have picked up additional personnel as a result of the Pentagon plan.

Since then, the Pascagoula homeport has been taken off the Commission's list. But, unfortunately, the Meridian Naval Air Station remains on the list.

I will continue to work with Sen. Thad Cochran, Rep. Sonny Montgomery, and Meridian officials to protect Meridian Naval Station from closure. I am confident that we will be successful and that Meridian will continue to provide the Navy with its finest aviators.

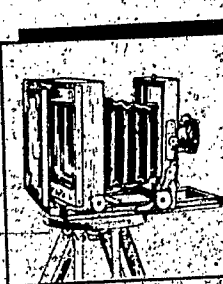

Second, when the House Appropriations Committee failed to provide funding for NASA's proposed Space Station Freedom recently, it seriously threatened the need for the Advanced Solid Rocket Motors (ASRM) that were to be built at the Yellow Creek plant in Iuka and tested at the Stennis Space Center.

Our space effort and the space station is vital to keeping America at the top of the technological heap. Fortunately, the House of Representatives overruled the committee and added funds for Space Station Freedom. I am sure that the Senate will also vote for funding for this important project.

Third, after an internal study by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers recommended the consolidation of several of the Corps' operations at Vicksburg, Tennessee Sen. Jim Sasser quickly attacked Vicksburg and called for closing Vicksburg and moving operations to Memphis instead.

The Corps' plan would have closed Corps facilities in Memphis and Nashville and moved them to Vicksburg. I believe it is a good decision and I will continue to work to ensure that the plan is followed.

I am confident that all of Mississippi's bases and facilities will survive these threats and come out stronger and better than ever.

Representatives of the Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District found very little support for public transportation in Hancock County during a meeting in the county courthouse Tuesday. The meeting was designed to hear public input on the subject, but only Jean Bell of the Hancock County Information and Referral and Theresa James of the county's Retired-Senior Volunteer Program were present to hear the proposals.

Officers for the Rotary year include Reuben Gray, president; Joe D. McCullough, vice-president and Carl Smith, who will again serve as secretary-treasurer.

Waveland's Town Council made a vain attempt Tuesday night at getting the Louisville and Nashville Railroad to install automatic signal lights at Waveland, Coleman and Nicholson avenues crossings. Taking the stand the crossings in question were dangerous due to their steep incline and hampering of motorists' vision because of carelessly parked railway cars. Mayor Garfield Ladner and Aldermen John Longo Jr., Albert Grass and Dominic Sonier argued that it was the L and N's responsibility to protect citizens from speeding trains.

It is possible that the next year or so will see a bridge built across the Bay of St. Louis at a point about one mile north of the present structure across that body of water, says the Gulfport Daily Herald of Monday afternoon. If built, the bridge will be the property of a contracting company which sees possibilities in this section of the country. The company will depend on the tolls to reimburse it for the outlay entailed in the construction. The company will guarantee to operate the bridge for a number of years, after which time, should Harrison of Hancock Counties wish to take it over, they may do so at the actual cost of construction.

There were over 1500 persons aboard the train, and as it passed Tuesday night about 9 o'clock it was brilliantly illuminated by electricity, which shown for miles up our railroad.

Our town is only 43 miles from New Orleans and offers inducements equal to any other town on any other railroad. Come and see.

Our corn crop is the best ever raised, watermelons are "out of sight," cabbage as large as can be raised anywhere and sweet potatoes seem to be the natural growth of our land. In short we can raise anything in the truck line we plant, only one drawback which is the inability of marketing the surplus hereabouts.

July 4th in Saudi Arabia

United States Congressman Gene Taylor, eighth from right, visits with members of the 1355th Combat Support Company of the Mississippi National Guard from the Bay St. Louis area on July 4th in Saudi Arabia. Taylor reported there were several other members of the unit on duty or holiday pass when this photo was taken at a shrimp boil he provided for the soldiers as a holiday treat from the Mississippi Gulf Coast. The Congressman reported Saturday that the 1355th should be stateside by the end of July. (Photo Special to The Echo).

surplus property auction and the upcoming tax sale. Favre informed the council that Ocean Springs is requesting the city's participation in a welcome home celebration for the National Guard's 1355th; and asked that consideration be given to organizing a local troop welcome for August.

Speaking of this weekend's Crab Festival and the 5K run/1 mile walk, Favre said the run/walk organizers still had not received Highway Department approval to continue using the Bay bridge as part of its route. The city council had decided and informed the organizers that Bay St. Louis would no longer supply police officers to traffic the route because it was not in the city's jurisdiction.

In other matters, the council opened bids for cleaning and painting of two water towers; authorized advertisement of term contract asphalt bids; approved payment to city consultant/liaison Jules Lagarde of $2,316.24 for his work with the consultants hired for the city's gaming feasibility/design guidelines/zoning study; authorized travel for Main Street Program manager Michael Cuevas to two Main Street Manager training seminars in Natchez and Madison County; approved advertisement for the city in Gambit magazine; and accepted the docket and the state motor vehicle assessment schedule.

The council adjourned to July 16.

Industries Inc. in Gulfport, has entered a not-guilty plea through his attorney, Derek Wyatt of Gulfport.

Ethridge has previously stated to The Sea Coast Echo that he thought Welman tried to prevent him from entering the meeting.

Welman contended, "I didn't know he was there. I didn't say a thing to him."

Welman added that there were four to five witnesses including Lou Wilkerson, the wife of councilman John Wilkerson, and the grandson of councilman Charles Scianna.

Marrs said, "There were a lot of people in the doorway. 'All he had to do was ask and we would have moved.'"

Ethridge, declining to comment at this time on the upcoming trial date, stated that he stood by his original comments given to The Sea Coast Echo following the incident.

At that time, Ethridge commented that there "is a certain element involved in promoting dockside gambling that will resort to coercive tactics to try to intimidate citizens who have legitimate concerns over the problem gambling will cause in the community."

"I regret that I have been the target of such tactics, but I believe anyone who knows me will see how ridiculous the whole thing is."

"I do think, however, that it shows the degree of divisiveness that has impacted our community over dockside gambling."

Marrs stated that "he (Ethridge) wants to blame it (the incident) on those interested in promoting gambling, but the only activities that have been undesirable and unwanted have come from Mr. Ethridge."

"If the man had called me at anytime and apologized I would have dropped the charges. But he never has."

his expenses.

He stated, "Anything I draw (salary) will be from private funds, of which I have yet to receive anything."

Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission director Harold "Buz" Olsen stated Gordon has "done a good job putting this together."

Olsen said the Port and Harbor Commission has committed $5,000 to $7,500 in "in-kind services" to Southern Development Association in order to help in securing the EDA grant.

By "in-kind services," Olsen explained, "the commission places a dollar value on any services it might provide for the association during its pursuit of clients, such as clerical services or the usage of office space."

Until now, Gordon stated, the Southern Development Association has been receiving private funding from Mississippi Power Company; the Harrison County Economic Development Council and the Gulf Coast Economic Development Council.

The holdup in leasing the building, Gordon explained, has been caused by the Department of Defense. "The Army has not been able to decide what they wanted to do with it."

Gordon said within the last year a few companies demonstrated interest out of the 200 solicited by the association, but they gave up after the Army failed to take action on a contract agreement.

Since then, Gordon added, the Army has a new commander over all of their ammunitions producing plants; and has since given the go-ahead for the leasing of all or part of the plant.

He commented the association is hoping to lease the plant to a new business, compared to an already existing business which might move an already established business and thereby hurting another community. Gordon said, "We are going out again within the next few weeks to contact 60 to 70 more companies, trying to get a new business."

"A good part of the plant is already laid away, so someone could move in now if they were interested."

Gordon estimated that if all went well, two years from now the county would once again feel the effects of employment from the facility.

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

Is there anything to eat left in the fridge or on the kitchen shelves as the Festive Fourth weekend winds down to its close? Seems that everyone has been constantly munching or sipping or digging into huge platters of delicious food, doesn't it?

"Not to worry," as the saying goes; there are good buys and good choices in abundant supply at our area supermarkets, so that we can stop, stock up and start all over again! On the other hand, if you've some of this and some of that left over, head for the pasta and rice sections and the potato bins, where you'll find these staples offered at good savings to form the basis of tasty meals. Just cook up your choice, making use of those leftovers from the barbecue, such as grilled chicken or roast or ribs. Or, perhaps, mix up a rice or pasta salad, with bits of vegetables and slivers of ham or chicken or pork roast, for example, and bits and pieces from the vegetable relish tray and such. Be inventive, and save money!

If your choice is dried beans, or fresh greens, for a change of pace at table, pick up some of the pickled meat or salt meat, perhaps. Bacon is also a special buy these days, as is pork sausage, in rolls or links.

Chicken—breast quarters and breasts, as well as thighs and leg quarters, are top choice at the markets for value and a special favorite with many of us. And, so easy-on-the-cook! Here's a quick, tasty meal for four; and you need only one solitary chicken breast, skinned and boned, for it!

It's a "light" dish, also, a speedy stir-fry low in calorie count and fat content, and totally delicious. It's a zesty marinated chicken dish, brought to us by Nancy Bial of "Better Homes and Gardens" Magazine. Here's:

ORANGE CHICKEN AND BROCCOLI STIR-FRY

1 Tbsp. tamari or soy sauce

1 Tbsp. dry sherry
1 tsp. grated gingerroot
1 medium, skinless, boneless chicken breast (3/4 lb.) cut into 1-inch pieces
Non-stick spray coating
3 cups sliced broccoli
1 medium onion, sliced and separated into rings
1 Tbsp. cooking oil
1 cup orange juice
1 Tbsp. cornstarch
2 cups hot cooked brown rice
Orange slices, halved (optional)

In a medium mixing bowl, combine tamari or soy sauce, sherry and gingerroot and add chicken pieces. Cover and chill in the refrigerator for 20 minutes; drain chicken, reserving marinade.

Spray a cold wok or a large skillet with non-stick spray coating; preheat over medium-high heat. Add broccoli and onion. Stir-fry for 2 minutes or until crisp-tender. Remove from wok. Add oil to wok, and add chicken. Stir-fry for 2 to 3 minutes or until tender and no longer pink. Push chicken to side of wok or skillet. Combine juice, cornstarch and reserved marinade. Add to wok. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Stir broccoli mixture into sauce. Cook and stir for 1 to 3 minutes more or until heated through. Serve with rice and orange slices, if desired—I do! (4 servings)

As Nancy Bial points out, you'll have a head start on the sauce for the chicken, because you use some of the gingery tamari marinade to flavor it. (Tamari is a soybean-based sauce that is slightly thicker and sweeter than soy sauce, and is available at Oriental food markets; or you may substitute soy sauce.)

Boneless rump roasts are a special buy. I think that I shall toss one into the crockpot, along with potatoes and onions and carrots and seasonings and let it cook itself while I busy myself elsewhere. Or, you might choose to oven-roast it. Beef brisket is also a good choice.

And, if you don't feel up to cooking, there's always the deli!

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katie McGuire Caire

"Salad soups" tempt the palate when the temperature soars and the appetite plummets. They're easy-on-the-cook dishes, at least at mealtime, for the menu needs only cold meats or cheeses and hot breads to round it out.

On the other hand, these cooling and refreshing salad soups are a tasty prelude to the holiday feasts, such as the Fourth of July, or a good way to use up leftover vegetables, perhaps from the barbecue or picnic or whatever you've chosen.

One of the finest of these cold salad soups is Spain's famed Gazpacho, a frosty salad-soup or soup-salad, however you choose to call it. It is said that gazpacho originated as the mainstay of peasants working in the fields of Spain under the blazing summer sun.

Their womenfolk carried the chilly soup in jugs to the workers to help refresh them as they toiled in the fields and olive groves throughout the long, hot summer days. There is no iron-clad "one and only" way to make gazpacho; there are endless variations, with heated debates ranging at times over the ingredients and proper methods.

Some like the vegetables smoothed down to a thick puree; others prefer their gazpacho chunkier or finely-diced. There are long ways to make it, and short ways to make, and an all-but-instant way for those who really abhor the kitchen. Here's one way to make:

1/3 cup olive oil
3 Tbsp. lemon juice
2 cups tomato juice
Dashes of salt, freshly ground black pepper, hot pepper sauce to your taste.

For even more flavor, start a day ahead by rubbing a glass or china bowl with a clove of garlic, and discard the garlic. (Then, I refrigerate the bowl, covered, of course, lest everything else in the fridge starts reeking of garlic.)

Early next day, peel, seed and chop the tomatoes fine, along with the cucumbers, and place in the bowl. (I don't peel mine; you may want to peel yours.)

Add the chopped onion and bell pepper, then pour over the mixture the olive oil and lemon juice, blended together. Chill for several hours in the refrigerator in the "seasoned" bowl. Just before serving, pour in the tomato juice and add the salt, pepper and hot pepper sauce.

Serve in chilled soup plates or glass bowls, with an ice cube in each, and with sprinkles of fresh chopped parsley atop. Garnish with croutons if you wish. For an easy blender gazpacho, combine a half cup of chopped onion, the same of bell pepper and cucumber, along with a minced garlic clove, two cups of water and a can of condensed tomato soup, three tablespoons of red wine vinegar and a fourth cup of olive oil, in your blender. Puree until velvety, chill for two hours or so, serve with croutons—but, I prefer mine "chunkier," as I said earlier!

Combined Final Notification and Finding of No Significant Environmental Impact

The U.S. Department of Agriculture, Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) has received a preapplication from the Kiln Fire and Water Protection District. The Specific elements of this proposed action are to construct a 225 GPM Water Well.

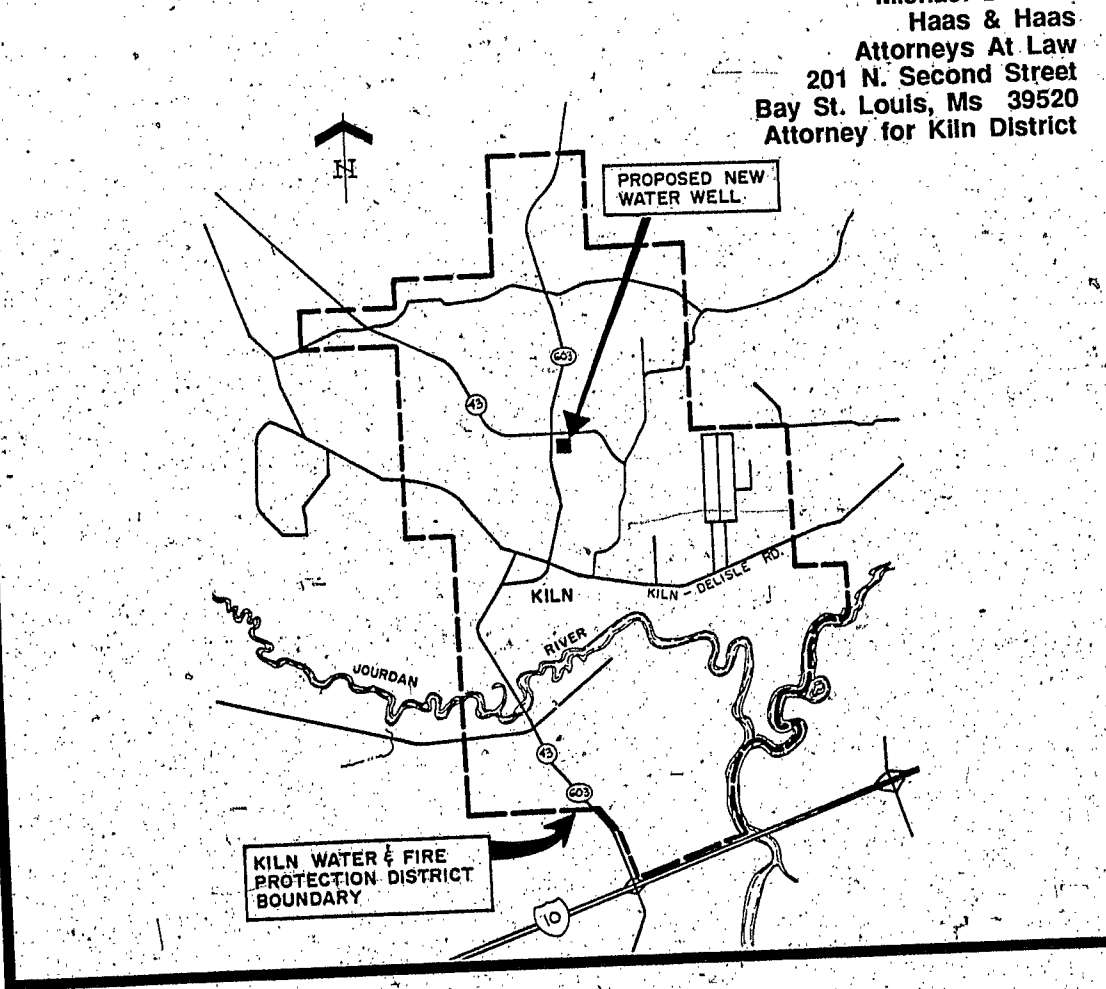

FmHA has assessed the potential environmental impacts of this proposed action and determined that this project could have direct and indirect impacts on the floodplain and wetlands within the system's service area by allowing future growth. To mitigate any adverse impacts, the fire and water district shall adopt legally enforceable tap-in restrictions which shall prohibit service to any structures built, placed or erected in the 100-year floodplain after approval of the loan for this project. The identified 100-year floodplain will be those areas identified by the Federal Emergency Management Agency on the latest edition of the Flood Insurance Rate Map (FIRM) for the service area.

FmHA has further determined that this proposed action will not significantly affect the quality of the human environment. Therefore, FmHA will not prepare an environmental impact statement for this proposed action.

Any written comments regarding this determination should be provided within fifteen (15) days of this publication to Robert W. Smith, Acting District Director, Farmers Home Administration, FmHA will make no further decisions regarding this proposed action during this fifteen-day period. Hot 'n spicy

Fourth of July kicks off
OLG Crab Festival

The weather wasn't all that was hot—July 4th at the Our Lady of the Gulf's annual Crab Festival. Fireworks and some of the spiciest seafood this side of the Mississippi helped kick off the fest in proper Gulf Coast fashion.

Above, a fireworks display lights up the night sky as fest-goers check out the offerings of the White Elephant area, which had just about everything under the sun (and moon). At

The Crab Fest continues today.

Wheel Horse Power Bags Tough Grass.

$1525⁰⁰ Reg. $1895⁰⁰

In this area we grow a lot of tough grass. Wide-leaf grasses, like St. Augustine and Bermuda, are difficult to mow and difficult to bag. But Wheel Horse tractors are built to take it. Even the smallest Wheel Horse tractors have the weight, horsepower and bagging capability to handle tough grass.

New Wheel Horse Super Bagger mowers feature high-lift blades and vacuum action to pull grass up for clean, even cuts and superior bagging. When you team them up with Wheel Horse Power, you've got what it takes to handle any kind of grass—quickly and easily.
